Design Thinking is a human-centered approach to innovation that draws from the knowledge of design, business acumen, and insights from the human sciences, such as psychology, to create a path to solutions that are more useful, more desirable, and more desirable.

- To introduce participants to the Design Thinking process.
- To teach participants how to use Design Thinking to solve real-world problems.
- To help participants develop their problem-solving, creativity, and collaboration skills.
- To help participants develop a more human-centered approach to problem solving.

Last date of registration: 8th December 2023
<https://forms.gle/Ao4XS2JH917ZLR6eA>

- The Program will offer the participants to understand the following concepts:
- Design Thinking is more than just a process. It is also a mindset that values empathy, creativity, and collaboration.
 - Design Thinking is not linear but an iterative process.
 - Design Thinking is not just for designers and can be used by anyone, regardless of their job title or experience.
 - Design Thinking can be used to solve any kind of problem from a wide range of industries and disciplines.
